The panelists were (in the order of appearance)

1. Mr. Karrie Chris Onesimus (3rd year)
2. Mr. D.L. Srinivasan (3rd year)
3. Mr. K.R Srinivasan (3rd year)
4. Mr. Hajay Nanda (2nd year)
5. Ms. Dhanya S (2nd year)
6. Mr. Mahesh Krishna S (3rd year)

5. Number of Staff Participants : 4

6. Number of Student Participants: 91 (according to the respondents of the feedback form)

7. Report of the Event

i) Objectives :-

- To break fear of communication among students as much as possible
- To provide information on both corporate and informal communication
- To narrate real life examples of communication skills for better understanding

ii) Proceedings:-

Welcome Addresses:-

The initial welcome address was given by Ms.Vaishnavi (3rd year), and the formal welcome address was given by Mr.Mahesh VR (General Secretary) (2nd year)

Prayer Song:-

A prayer song was sung by Ms.Pavitra (2nd year) to start the event.

Speaker 1: Mr.Karrie Chris Onesimus

Mr. Karrie spoke about professional and formal communication, maintaining clarity and simplicity, communicating with seniors, colleagues and juniors, drawing a line between informal and formal tones, proper listening skills, maintaining appearance and body language depending upon different situations

Question from the audience: (by Ms. Roshini)

For a starter speaker, should they speak only what they planned to speak, or be flexible and change content according to how things move?

Answer: The audience don't know what you'll be speaking, so even if you miss a line, it will be okay. Even if anything happens, don't worry and keep moving. You could also improvise on spot. Losing one or two points in your content is okay, since the audience won't know you've forgot your point. Don't lose confidence and keep going with the flow.

Speaker 2: Mr. D.L.Srinivasan

Mr. Srinivasan spoke about his real life examples. The first one was creating own speaking opportunities. Mr. Srinivasan illustrated his example of having a YouTube channel and how he uses it to communicate his thoughts and help others selecting their professional courses. The second example was situated on grabbing any and every opportunity. Mr. Srinivasan illustrated an example of how he approached a businessman while in a train and landed himself a job at his firm

Question from the Audience: (by Mr.Mahesh VR)

As an aviation enthusiast, I always want to speak to pilots. I know a lot about aviation and could keep conversations going for hours. But, how do I approach them first without making them feel disturbed or uncomfortable?

Answer: Introduce yourself and start up a conversation that will make them engaged and impressed that a person like you knows so much about aviation. Use your knowledge to keep the conversation going.

Open Question from the panelist to the audience

Scenario: You are waiting for an interview, to select one person. There are 200 participants, and you are the last. The HR person says "I've interviewed everyone and you are the last. I have a list of the top 5 people. Are you willing to continue this interview?" What will be your response?

Answered by Aarthi: I will continue with the interview. I might be better than even those 5 top participants.

Speaker 3: Mr. K.R. Srinivasan

Mr.K.R.Srinivasan spoke about delivering presentations in different forums using PowerPoint, including efficient methods to design, structure and deliver presentations

Open Question from the panelist to the audience

Scenario: You are a newly joined member in a marketing team in an extreme organization. Your marketing head is asking you to prepare a PPT to market a new product in a certain locality, say Villivakam

Answered by Gnanasekaran: I'll do background research to find what type of product that needs to be sold and devise a presentation based on the product that is sold and also coordinate with subordinates to deliver a good pitch

Answered by Yash: First, I'll collect data on what product is being sold, and understand the product. Second, I'll design my presentation depending upon whom I'm presenting to. I'll reach them via different modes depending upon the target demographic. Third, I'll keep slides as minimum as possible, and also keep the presentation short and crisp

Question from the Audience (By: Gnanasekaran)

How will you gather information in a very short period of time?

Answer: That's where presence of mind plays a role. When my superior asks me to present in a very short period of time, I'll change my content style to keep as much relevance as possible while also being able to deliver the information

Question from the Audience (By Yash)

Sometimes, using charts and graphs may make important numbers seem less important when they need to be. What do you think about that?

Answer: Charts and graph depend upon who are our audience. We need to balance out graphical and numerical data depending upon our audience

Speaker 4: Mr. V. Hajay Nanda

Mr. Hajay spoke about his experience of how he overcame his hesitation to climb up the stage and open up. He narrated how he got motivated by another speaker and climbed up a stage for the first time. He also illustrated his experience at stage speaking in college, and motivated people to stop the hesitation to climb up the stage

Question from the Audience (By R.L.Naaraayan)

How do you deal with audience asking you questions you may not know?

Answer: Even if you don't know about it, speak confidently what you know about, or if you don't know anything about it, you can politely say "I don't know"

Question from the Audience (By Fazil Rahman)

How do we deal with people with an inferiority complex and people mocking when it comes to stage speaking?

Answer: Even for experienced speakers, there is always some fear. When we think about people mocking, think for yourself that "You took the opportunity and they didn't". Once you climb up the stage and speak, you will forget these things.

Question from the Audience (By Madhumitha P)

How do you deal with situations where you speak in front of a brand new audience?

Answer: Actually, speaking in front of an audience you personally know is more fear-inducing than speaking in front of an audience who are new to you, since you don't have any personal rapport with a new audience.

Speaker 5: Ms. S. Dhanya

Ms. Dhanya spoke about her experience with stage fear, and how the willpower to speak at any time will always ensure that you overcome obstacles. She also narrated her first-time experience of climbing up the stage spontaneously in college. She also spoke about how speaking contributes to her own self-development as well as enriching others.

Question from the audience (By Preethi B)

In the orientation program, how did you have the confidence to climb up spontaneously?

Answer: I still had some anxiety about going into a fresh environment. I only had a thought that "I just want to sing". This was a first time experience with a crowd that is lively. My interest and willpower itself gave me confidence

Question from the audience (By Hemasri)

What was your biggest challenge when starting to speak?

Answer: When people speak before me, they might speak better than me. This was a big challenge. Another one was facing restrictions on "what and how" to speak.

Question from the audience (By Gowthami)

Sometimes, when we slip-up, we might feel some reduction in confidence. How do you deal with that?

Answer: One time, when I got a breakdown after not getting a prize, I started thinking positively and said to myself that I'll do better next time. If we keep too much expectation for the consequence, we might miss up on the actual performance.

Speaker 6: Mr. S. Mahesh Krishna

Mr. Mahesh Krishna provided general tips, dos and don'ts. He spoke about stress and anxiety during speaking, and how to overcome them. He spoke about stage behavior and must-dos to present ourselves on a stage, like body language and maintaining a smile, and how it will impact your listeners. He also spoke about the power of listening.

Question from the audience (By Sajith)

I'm meeting a person who speaks a different language and comes from a different cultural background. In that case, how should I use my vocabulary skills in that conversation?

Answer: You need to look at them and understand where they are coming from and be aware a bit about their background and talk accordingly too. Use a common language and speak only in layman terms and avoid technical jargon as much as possible. Speak slowly, keep your vocabulary short and crisp

Question from the audience (By Namasivayam)

For a shy person is climbing up a stage in from of a large audience, he forgets what he went to speak. How should we deal with it?

Answer: The first thing is to stop panicking. Everyone can do it. Overcoming that situation is easy. The trick is to keep calm by taking deep breaths and having a clear mind. Even if you forget information, you would always remember parts of it. Use them and keep your confidence to deliver the message as clear as possible

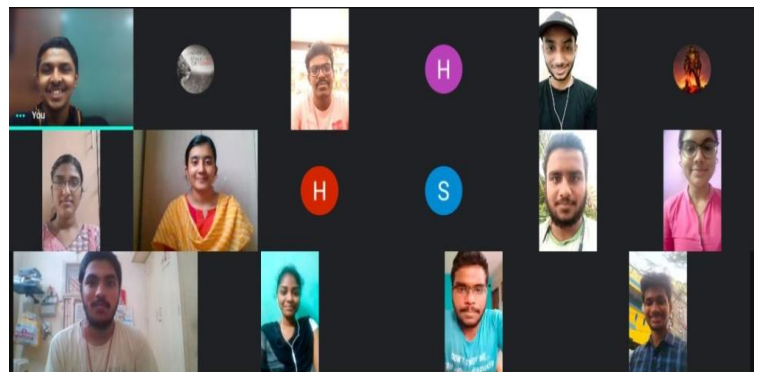

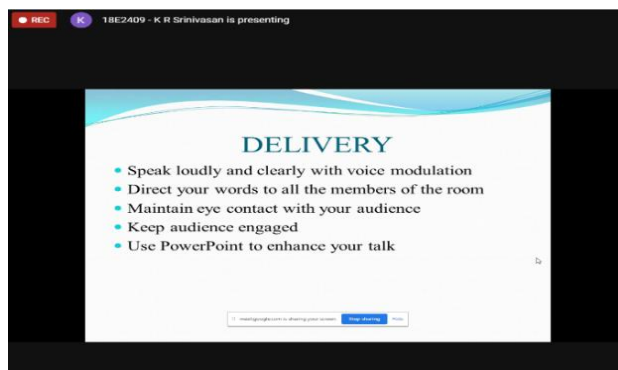

Tamil Poem by Ms Meenakshi. S

Ms Meenakshi delivered a poem in the language “Tamil” with the theme of communication skills, and their importance.

Vote of Thanks by the Chairman

The Chairman of Samvruth, Mr. Swaminathan delivered the vote of thanks.
